LEAPS AND BOUNDS. THERE IS NO POSSIBILITY OF OVER-STOCKING.
THE ONLY QUESTION IS, HAVE YOU STOCK ENOUGH FOR THIS MONTH.

TO THE BOOKDEALER:—

For some time we have been trying to devise a scheme for enlisting the co-operation of booksellers in securing circulation for The Reader Magazine. In order to do this, we realized that we should have to invent a plan which would make a genuine appeal to the dealer's self-interest and out of which he could derive an adequate profit.

With this in view, we selected from our Fall list the finest gift book we have ever published, illustrated by the most popular artist in America—The Christy Girl—magnificently pictured in full color by Howard Chandler Christy.

We decided to publish this book at the price of $3.00 net, an altogether reasonable and moderate price for the book alone.

Each copy of The Christy Girl is issued in a handsome glazed paper box with a Christy picture on the top. In the bottom of each box is a coupon which entitles the purchaser of the book to a full year's subscription to The Reader Magazine without any extra charge whatever.

The purchaser can send the magazine to any one he pleases, and to the coupon is attached a presentation card for use in case the purchaser desires to make a separate Christmas present of The Reader.

In other words, every copy of The Christy Girl sold carries with it a year's subscription to The Reader.

THE CHRISTY GIRL, the handsomest gift

book of the year . . . . . $3.00

THE READER MAGAZINE for one year . . . . . 3.00

$6.00

Both for $3.00

When the customer buys the book in your store he may have you send in the subscription coupon or he may mail it direct to us himself. In either event there is no additional cost, either to him or to you.

Reports from all over the country indicate that this proposition is one to which the Holiday buying public will take with enthusiasm.

Mr. Christy's name is a household word throughout America. He appeals to all classes of society and particularly to those who can afford to pay for a $3.00 book.

Thousands would buy The Christy Girl for itself alone. Thousands more will be induced to purchase the book because it will enable them to make two Christmas presents for the price of one.

The plan is simple and within the ready comprehension of any salesman or saleswoman. They will not require coaching to see the easy and effective talking points which they will have with every customer.

In order to assist you in your campaign, we shall be happy to supply you with a handsome poster in four colors, size 24 by 33 inches, and with as many circulars as you can use.

The Christy Girl is conspicuously advertised in our big colored eight-page magazine insert of which over three million copies will be circulated.

If there is any feature of the scheme which is not perfectly clear to you, please let us know and we will explain with pleasure.

Yours very truly,

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

Indianapolis

THE TRADE DEMANDS THE TRUTH!

At the present time there is being extensively circulated, in all parts of the country, a pamphlet bearing the signature of G. & C. Merriam Co., entitled "The Truth About Certain So-called Webster's Dictionaries," in which they attack Laird & Lee's WEBSTER'S NEW STANDARD DICTIONARY.

MERRIAM CO. FORCE THE ISSUE!

A FEW PERTINENT QUESTIONS:

- WHY did you wait until within a few weeks ago before taking steps to interfere with a business that has been built up by hard work and the expenditure of thousands of dollars, if you had any right in the name Webster, after the 1847 copyright expired—seventeen years ago? In view of these facts, is it not a little short of a crime to attempt to crush and drive a competitor out of business after permitting that competitor to advertise and keep the name "Webster" alive before the public for so many years?
- WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution (nearly 2,000,000 copies) of Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket Webster Pronouncing Dictionary, published in 1892, nearly fifteen years ago? Did you not know that this was the first ever issued?
- WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution (over half a million) of Webster's Modern Dictionary, published in 1895 (eleven years ago)? Is it not a fact that you knew that this dictionary was extensively advertised under the name of "Webster"? If so, is it not true, also, that you did not place any special value on the name so long as it did not directly interfere with your school business?
- WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of "Grimm-Webster," (German-English and English-German) Dictionary, copyrighted in 1897 (nine years ago)? Was it also because this book was not used in the schools that you placed so little value on the name "Webster"?
- WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of "Salva-Webster," (Spanish-English and English-Spanish) Dictionary, copyrighted in 1898 (eight years ago)? It appears that this title also did not attract your attention.
- WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of Laird & Lee's "Littré-Webster," (English-French and French-English) Dictionary, published in 1899 (seven years ago), also of The Standard Webster Pocket Dictionary; Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket "Kaiser" Dictionary, and Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket Standard (English-Spanish and Spanish-English) Dictionary, (aggregate sales over 200,000)? These dictionaries having been advertised for years in the same mediums used by your company, you, of course, must have known that they were on the market.
- WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of Webster's New Standard Dictionary, five editions, the first one published in 1903, two sample copies of which were sent direct to the editorial rooms of the American Book Company, per order, October 3d, 1903, presumably for examination, nearly three years before any move was made to prevent their sale, and after twelve distinct dictionaries had been published bearing the name "Webster"?
- WHY did you claim that Webster's Handy Dictionary is "From the latest edition of the large dictionary of Noah Webster"? Does it not bear all the ear marks of an English lexicon? Can you account for the similarity between this dictionary and the edition published by the Chicago Tribune in 1886, not copyrighted, illustrations and style of type and size of pages appearing to be almost identical—260 cuts in one and 258 in the other—print evidently pearl type (twenty to thirty years old), so small that it must have ruined the eyes of thousands of children?
- WHY did you deviate from the system, followed in all the different editions of your dictionaries, beginning each vocabulary word with a capital, up to Webster's "Little Gem" Dictionary, copyrighted in 1905, in which the capitals are used only where required, a system first adopted by Laird & Lee for Webster's New Standard Dictionaries? Also, why did you adopt in this same book the principle of using a numeral to indicate the doubling of a consonant in verb derivatives? Did you not know that Laird & Lee originated this feature, which appeared first in their original Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket Pronouncing Dictionary, copyrighted in 1892, nearly fifteen years ago? G. & C. Merriam Co. have forced the issue upon Laird & Lee and the public; therefore, the public and Trade have the right to know the truth.

DEALERS

Why not encourage competition? Don't you know that Laird & Lee are directly responsible for the increased discount recently allowed on certain "So-called Webster Dictionaries"? DON'T BE DECEIVED.

We're Still Shipping Ralph Connor's LATEST The Doctor!

The avalanche of orders for Ralph Connor's new book has far exceeded any possible expectation, but they are all being shipped as promptly as twentieth century facilities will permit. True, it has been a case of keeping our force till the "wee sma' hours," but

"Wires" Doubling Orders

Yes, and tripling, and even quadrupling original anticipated requirements make unusual measures necessary. One telegram to-day increases an original order from 5000 to 10,000 copies, and the book not yet two weeks published.

Before Publication

In United States, Great Britain and Canada, we anticipated a combined advanced sale of 75,000 copies, which would appear enough for first orders. How inadequate it proved is best told by these figures :

	AMERICAN EDITION	BRITISH EDITION	CANADIAN EDITION
First Printing.....	75,000	25,000	25,000
Second Printing...	15,000	5,000	5,000
	90,000	30,000	30,000

(A Total of 150,000 Copies)

Any jobber will tell you that Ralph Connor's "THE DOCTOR" is easily the best selling book in America to-day.

MOLIÈRE: A Biography

Keep this book well to the fore for Holiday Shoppers

MOLIÈRE A BIOGRAPHY

By H. C. CHATFIELD-TAYLOR

Introduction by Professor T. F. CRANE of Cornell University; illustrations by "Job;"
complete Index and Appendices. Large 8vo, gilt top. Pages xxiv., 446. $3.00 net. Postage 24c.

DUFFIELD AND COMPANY
36 EAST 21ST ST NEW YORK

"It is no small credit to American literature that such a work as this has been prepared by an American author, and for many years, we venture to say, Mr. Chatfield-Taylor's 'Molière' will be the standard in the English language both for the general reader and the student."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Vigorous, authentic and vivid biography . . . marked by an intense sympathy with the spirit of Molière's life and work and by a fine critical faculty."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"A careful and scholarly book, it is the result of studies pursued in the home of Molière. The text is admirably supplemented by the illustrations of M. Jacques Onfroy de Breville (Job), who has examined the original documents and plates preserved in the archives of the Comédie Française and the Bibliothèque Nationale, and so has rendered accurately the spirit and atmosphere of the period."—New York Herald.

"A most charming and attractive feature of the books are the pictures by 'Job,' alias Jacques Onfroy, Comte de Breville, whose pictures of the great French actor-playwright are pictorial human documents wrought with the most scrupulous fidelity to reality and with fine artistic spirit"—New York Times Saturday Review.

"The book itself is a fine example of printing at its best, with good paper and a substantial binding. It is provided with appendices and an index, including a complete bibliography for the use of students. Taken as a whole, the work will rank with the best endeavors in American literature, classing itself in interest and accuracy with the most noteworthy of our histories and biographies from the beginning."—Chicago Daily News.

NOTES IN SEASON.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have completed arrangements with George Barr McCutcheon for publishing next spring a new short story to be illustrated by Harrison Fisher, and to be issued in the same general style as "Cowardice Court" and "The Purple Parasol."

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY has just issued "Wittenberg and the Reformation," by the Rev. G. E. Sehlbrede. The author makes the figure of Luther stand out in its rigid simplicity and greatness, and he narrates with force and accuracy the abuses and tyrannies that brought Luther into resistance and rebellion. The work is fully illustrated.

HERBERT B. TURNER & CO. have just ready "The Book of Elizabethan Verse," chosen and edited with notes by William Stanley Braithwaite, and supplied with an introduction by Thomas Wentworth Higginson. The work, upon good authority, is perhaps the most important publishing event since the appearance of Stedman's "American Anthology," and "challenges comparison with the four great anthologies of English poetry, no one of which enters to any great extent upon its field and to which noble company it certainly seems worthy of admission."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for publication during the month "The Life of Walter Pater," by Thomas Wright, author of the "Life of Sir Richard Burton," to appear in two 8vo volumes with illustrations of singular interest, only two or three of which have been seen by the public. The author has secured a mass of information from three intimate and confidential friends of Pater's, one of whom is said to be the original of "Marius the Epicurean." On December 12 "The Patriot," by Fogazzaro, will appear, the first in time of the three novels that are to tell the story of three generations of a family. "The Saint" has already appeared, and "The Sinner" will shortly follow. In a few days will be ready "Madame Récamier and Her Friends," by Edward Herriot, said to be the most remarkable account of this great woman yet published.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly a book on "Federal Power Over Carriers and Corporations," by E. Parmalee Prentice. About four years ago the administration, taking up a suggestion previously made by the Industrial Commission, declared that it was possible for Congress to regulate corporations and many other subjects which had previously been left to the States, by the expedient of excluding from interstate and foreign commerce all such persons or corporations as may fail to comply with federal statutes. Upon this theory rest the prosecutions under the anti-trust act and much of the legislation before Congress. The subject is important both in its relation to political economy and for its effect upon the structure of government. Mr. Prentice treats of its constitutional aspect, giving an exhaustive review of early statutes, of State and federal practice, defining the powers of government, of the growth of stage-coach lines and of railways, the development of corporations, the creation of the combinations now known as trusts, and the history, meaning and possibilities of the anti-trust act.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

‡ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk **, and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. **¶

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which no price is given, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Balch, Lewis. Manual for boards of health and health officers; also the public health law, constituting chapter 25 of the general laws, with all amendatory and supplemental statutes, including those of 1906. Albany, N. Y., Banks & Co., 1906. c. D. $1.50.

Batcheller, Mrs. Tryphosa Bates. Glimpses of Italian court life: happy days in Italia adorata. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1906. c. 19+496 p. il. pors. Q. cl., **$4.80 net; ed. de luxe, vellum, $10, boxed.

Mrs. Batcheller is an amateur singer, well known in Boston socially. She visited Italy about a year ago under especially favorable conditions. She speaks Italian fluently, and had the entrée to the exclusive circles of modern Italian society. She was presented to the Royal family, to His Holiness the Pope, and met diplomats of all countries, leaders of society, musicians, artists and other prominent persons. A short time was spent at Naples and Milan, but her visit was chiefly at Rome. Her experiences and impressions were jotted down in familiar letters to her family in Boston, and out of these the book is made. Both text and pictures are almost entirely confined to the social side of modern Italian life. Two chapters on "Italians in Boston" and "Italians in New York," written after her return home to a friend in Rome, are rich in facts and figures. There is also a chapter devoted to a history of the House of Savoy.

Begbie, Harold. The happy Christ: a monograph. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. c. 104 p. 16°, cl., **$1 net.

Study of Christ the Man, the happy Christ, the Giver of Rest, the Light of the World, not the Man of Sorrows, the Christ of the Cross, with a view to applying his teachings and the force of his example to our everyday lives for their ennobling and spiritualizing. The author believes we are here in the world to cultivate character and through Christ's revelation to know God.

Bernays, A: C:, M.D. Golden rules of surgery: aphorisms, observations and reflections on the science and art of surgery. St.

Louis, Mo., C. V. Mosby Medical Book Co., 1906. c. 232 p. 8°, (Medical guides and monographs ser.) cl., $2.50.

Bulwer-Lytton, E: Rob., [1st Earl of Lytton; "Owen Meredith," pseud.] Personal and literary letters of Robert, first Earl of Lytton; ed. by Lady Betty Balfour. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1906. 2 v., 11+348; 9+448 p. pors. facsimis., O. cl., **$6 net.

Voluminous correspondence extending from boyhood days of the English diplomatist and poet, man of the world and of letters. Son of the novelist, born in 1831, Lord Lytton, from his eighteenth year, was connected with various embassies—Washington, Florence, Vienna, Madrid, Lisbon and Paris. In 1876 he was appointed Viceroy of India, being in office during the Afghan war, returned to England in 1880 for seven years, after which he became Ambassador at Paris, where he died in 1891. His letters shed light on contemporaneous English policies and affairs, as well as certain much literary and dramatic criticism. Lord Lytton is best known as the author of "Lucile," a poem he characterized as "trash" in his later life. Collection selected, arranged and interpolated with biographical bits by his daughter.

The first volume of the series. Bart Stirling is suddenly called upon to be the main support of his family. His father is the regular express agent, and through a disastrous explosion is incapacitated for work; Bart has the good fortune to be appointed in his place. The story relates the many ups and downs that attend his efforts to do his duty.

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith. Charles Dickens: a critical study. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. c. 5+300 p. D. cl., **$1.50 net.

The author is always original in way of putting his criticism. There are few men whose position in English literature is more fiercely disputed than that of Charles Dickens. Mr. Chesterton gives general justification to Dickens and to the whole literature of gigantic English humor, of which he was the best gigantic survival. He compares the results produced in important reforms by the optimism of Dickens with the far smaller results worked by the pessimism of his successors. He treats each novel separately, and then gives a general estimate of the vast influence of Dickens and of his marvellous creative genius.

Story purports to be based on fact, having been found in manuscript among the papers of a New Orleans physician by his heir and executor. Dr. Bruno, a gentleman of wealth, of German descent and education, after a disastrous love affair devotes himself to scientific experiments. He discovers a compound which produces sleep for any number of months and the harmless suspension of all physical functions. This drug he tries on himself with results unfolded by the tale. New Orleans and Jackson, Miss., are the scenes.

Davidson, T: The philosophy of Goethe's Faust; ed. by C. M. Bakewell. Bost., Ginn, [1906.] c. 5+156 p. O. cl., *60 c. net.

Author of "The education of the wage earners," etc. Throughout his life Mr. Davidson was an assiduous reader of Goethe's writings, and particularly of the Faust, most of which he knew by heart. In these six lectures, first delivered in the winter of 1896 at Cambridge, Mass., he has told what that poem had come to mean for him, and has sought to lay bare its "philosophical or ethical skeleton." The headings of lectures: The Faust motive; Mephistopheles at work; Gretchen; In quest of the "highest existence;" Faust seeks satisfaction in Hellenism; The redemption of Faust.

N. Y., Grafton Press, [1906.] c. 13+326 p. il. maps, D. cl., **$2 net.
- The period of the Indian war of 1675 and 1676, known as King Philip's war, is one of the most interesting in the early history of the New England colonies. It was the first great test to which the New England Commonwealths were subjected, and it enforced upon them in blood and fire the necessity of a mutual policy and active co-operation. The lesson that union is strength was learned at that time and was never forgotten. New England, after the war, free from fear of any Indian attacks, was able to turn her attention to her own peaceful industrial and political development undisturbed.

Work has been compiled at the request of Sir Thomas Lawrence's friend and sole executor, Mr. Keightley, from five volumes of correspondence in Mr. Keightley's possession. It is designed to give a different impression of the artist than that left after reading O. G. Knapp's "An artist's love story," published two years ago, detailing the story of Lawrence's tragic passion for the two daughters of Sarah Siddons. Lawrence was born in 1769, son of a Bristol innkeeper, and when only thirteen years old was making pencil and crayon portraits of the gay world at Bath. He died in 1830, the friend of many notable personages. Collection of letters include drafts of Lawrence's letters, as well as those from friends and patrons. Miss Croft's recollections are gleaned from a friendship of thirty years.

Lent, E: Burcham. Cupid's middleman; il. by H. B. Matthews. N. Y., Cupples & Leon, [1906.] c. 5+336 p. D. cl., $1.50. Humorous story recounting the things that happened when the Middleman wrote his chum's love letters. There is a peppery father-in-law-elect, who is bound to identify his daughter's lover as a notorious thief and murderer, and involves the young people and their Middleman in all manner of complications before the tangle is straightened out.

Macdonald, Frederika. Jean Jacques Rousseau: a new criticism. N. Y., Putnam, 1906. 2 v., 11+418; 10+405 p. il. pors. fac-sims., O. cl., $6.50.

Purpose of this criticism is to establish by means of newly-discovered historical documents the fact that as the result of a conspiracy between two men of letters (Grimm and Diderot) an entirely false reputation of Rousseau has been handed down to us, wherein he is represented as a man of repulsive character and vile private life. Such a conception of the man is a barrier in the way of the attentive study of his books and a just appreciation of his teachings and influences as a philosopher. The author quotes at length from contemporaneous letters and memoirs, as well as from Rousseau's works, and to each volume are appended extended notes in French. By the author of "Studies in the France of Voltaire and Rousseau," "Iliad of the East," etc.

Record of a motor trip of nearly 5000 miles beginning at Nice, through Provence to Biarritz, whence short trips were made into Spain; then into Central France, to Paris, which was made the centre for many charming excursions, and on to the Rhine Valley and Switzerland. By the author of "The heart of the Orient," "Great Siberian railway," and other travel books.

The creator of "The story of Noah's ark" tells the story of Pocahontas and Captain John Smith in a series of 26 full-page pictures, in soft tints, accompanied by historical running text. End-papers reproduce a quaint old map of Virginia, with medallion portraits in two corners. Cover decorated with the state arms of Virginia.

Snaith, J: Collis. Patricia at the inn; il. by H. B. Matthews. N. Y., B. W. Dodge & Co., 1906. c. 6+256 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "Broke of Covenden" has written a historical tale of the time of Charles the Second. The inn stood on a wild, lonely coast, and thither came Patricia, a noble lady, and her husband, and later the escaping king, after the battle of Worcester. An unredeemable rogue was landlord of the inn, and his schemes to make money from both the Roundheads and Cavaliers make an exciting story.

Tolstoi, Count Lyoff. Tolstoy [sic] on Shakespeare: a critical essay on Shakespeare by Leo Tolstoy; tr. by V. Tchertkoff and I. F. M.; followed by Shakespeare's attitude to the working classes by Ernest Crosby; and a Letter from G. Bernard Shaw. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1906. [N.] c. 4+169 p. S. cl., *75 c. net.

A treatise to show how overrated Shakespeare has been for over 200 years. Tolstoy condemns his ethics, his literary ability, his truth in characterization. He especially dissects the tragedy of King Lear to demonstrate his position. Bernard Shaw's letter says Tolstoy of course cannot appreciate the music of Shakespeare's verse and says a few kind words for Shakespeare.

Toohay, Rev. J. J. An indexed synopsis of the "Grammar of assent." N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1906. c. 6+220 p. D. cl., **$1.20 net.

Attempt to bring that portion of Cardinal Newman's philosophy developed in the "Grammar of assent" within easy reach of inquiring minds. From its form as an index it serves at once as an analytical index to the "Grammar," as a dictionary of Newman's philosophy, as a catalogue of his doctrines, and as a summary of his arguments. By a Jesuit priest.

Towle, Eleanor A. John Mason Neale, D.D.: a memoir. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1906. 13+338 p. il. pors. O. cl., *$3 net.

Dr. Neale, born in London in 1818, was an English clergyman, an archaeologist and author, though probably best known as the founder of the St. Margaret's Sisterhood at East Grinstead and St. Katharine's Orphanage, both near Sackville College, a home for old people, of which he was warden for many years. List of Dr. Neale's works appended include: "Herbert Tresham," "Shepperton Manor" and many other stories for young people, "A history of the Holy Eastern church," many carols and hymns, etc. Dr. Neale died in 1866. By the author of a Life of Dr. Mackenzie.

Tragedy (The) of Chicago: a study in hypnotism; how an innocent young man was hypnotized to the gallows; denunciations by savants. Chic., Dr. J. Sanderson Christison, [1906.] 90 p. pors. O. pap., 25 c.

Richard G. Ivens, 24 years of age, was accused of an atrocious murder, tried and hanged in Chicago by process of law on June 22, 1906. Although the evidence really exonerated him, Ivens "confessed" under the hypnotic influence of police officers until the evidence was sufficient for verdict of guilty. Ivens was supposed to be unusually sensitive to hypnotic influence. This pamphlet studies the remarkable case.

Train, Arthur. The prisoner at the bar: sidelights on the administration of criminal justice. N. Y., Scribner, 1906. [N.] c. 349 p. O. cl., **$2 net.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 8, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

INCREASE IN COST AND PRICE.

IN announcing an increase in the subscription price of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, it is but fair that the trade should be informed of the reasons which lead to that action, especially as they are reasons which affect the business of publishing books as well as of publishing periodicals.

The general cost of manufacture in the publishing trade has increased within twenty years from 20 to 50 per cent., as nearly as can be estimated, the variations depending upon the class of work. The increase has been most marked in the price of composition and in time-work within the composing room, resulting partly from direct increases in wages and partly from the shortening of the hours of work at the same rate of wages for "time hands." We find in our own case that the cost of time-work has increased more than 50 per cent., the most recent factor in this advance being the increase caused in union offices by the shortening of the day, at the beginning of 1906, from nine to eight hours at the same day wage, or an advance, theoretically, of  $12\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., which worked out in practice from 10 to 15 per cent., according to methods of work or the class of workmanship. The introduction of the linotype and other machines has to some extent mitigated this advance, but has not offset it, and the price of machine-work within the past few years has increased correlative with that of hand-work. Thus the actual cost of composition is much in advance of what it was in former years, despite the introduction of machinery. The cost of electrotyping has also advanced correspondingly, and there has been an advance in presswork, though not in the same proportion. Paper is in general lower than it was twenty years ago, but is higher than the low price which it touched a few years back, and an advance in that commodity is in the air.

The result of these advances has affected, most of all, the standard books and class periodicals, in which the cost of original manufacture—that is, of composition, correction, electrotyping, etc.—is large in comparison with the cost of duplication—that is, of presswork, paper, etc. It has least affected the "big sellers," the cheap magazines—with their enormous advertising at high prices—and the daily papers of sensational circulation, which use wood pulp paper, although the big sellers are now also handicapped by the increase in the cost of cloth binding. The publisher of standard books, of which an edition of from 1000 to 5000 copies is printed, has been hit hardest of all, and has not been able to recoup himself because the price of such books has not been substantially increased, but in many cases lessened.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is a class periodical which in a sense suffers from a double disadvantage. It has a minimum proportion of standing matter, (in last week's issue, for example, three pages out of 116 pages,) and, therefore, like a book, has to pay full cost of composition and correction with each issue. Its circulation, we believe, reaches approximately 95 per cent. of the entire bookselling machinery of the country, not including that for subscription books, and, in addition, it reaches a large proportion of public and other libraries, and a considerable number of private bookbuyers. But this does not give it a circulation commensurate with its expense in comparison with the magazines or newspapers referred to; therefore, its mechanical cost has increased in almost the highest ratio.

Twenty years ago THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY contained in its two yearly volumes an average of about 1800 pages per year. The two volumes of the present year will exceed 3800 pages, or more than double the total of twenty years ago. With the increase in book production it has been necessary to organize and develop a bibliographical system adequate to the present production of books, which in itself now requires a considerable staff, where not so many years back the work of two persons was adequate to the task. This would, of course, have been impossible without the large increase in advertising, for which we have to thank our friends the publishers, but the cost of producing THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has more than kept step with the increase in advertising patronage.

The price of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY twenty years ago was $3.20 per year. When the bulk rate for periodicals was introduced, postage was treated as a negligible quantity, and the round price of $3 was made in 1889. Since that time, even at the bulk rate, the cost of postage on the total numbers of the year has been steadily increasing, and there is now danger that the rate per pound will be substantially increased.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is now furnishing to its subscribers a number each week—fifty-two in the year—where formerly it issued several fortnightly numbers in the course of the year. Many of these numbers reach the dimensions of a book. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY also now includes a bibliographical system of wide range and large cost, aggregating more than double what it formerly gave at $3.20 per year. Under all these circumstances an advance to $4 per year seems necessary and reasonable, and we trust the facts we have set forth will be appreciated by our subscribers, to whom we tender most cordial thanks for their continued recognition and support during the generation through which this periodical has been the representative organ of the American booktrade.

Two important decisions, both connected with the drug trade, have recently been handed down—the bearing of which upon questions of the booktrade may prove important. In the case of Wells & Richardson against Abraham & Straus, Judges Wallace, Townsend and Coxe, constituting the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the second circuit, have declined to overrule the court below in its issuance of a preliminary injunction against the defendant firm. This, we understand, was a case in which a proprietary medicine was sold by the manufacturers under restriction as to price to a dealer, from whom the Abraham & Straus firm obtained a supply which they offered at cut prices. A preliminary injunction was granted on the ground that the defendant firm had knowledge of the conditions of sale and induced the intermediate dealer to supply them, notwithstanding their knowledge of the agreement. Whether the case will now go to trial on the main issue, a preliminary injunction having been granted, we are not informed; but as the matter stands the method of booktrade reform is strengthened by it. The other and more important case is a decision by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia in the well-known case of the American Druggists' Association, where the opinion of the court below is confirmed. This opinion was substantially that while the several associations involved in the case had individually a right to make the contracts in support of prices, the inter-action and compulsion which resulted were extra-legal and would not be upheld by the court. We have not yet obtained the text of the decision, which may have an important bearing on booktrade matters—partly adverse to and partly confirmatory of the present methods of the protection of prices in the booktrade.

THE ARTS CLUB BOOK SHOW.

An exhibition of the more important of the books published this year, with a special exhibit of hand bindings, is now open to the public in the galleries of the National Arts Club at 119 East Nineteenth Street, New York City. It is in some respects a novel exhibit, and one which proves exceedingly interesting. More than thirty well-known publishing houses have contributed or will contribute examples of their work. The Library Committee of the National Arts Club conceived the idea of the exhibit, and it has proved so attractive that it will be repeated every year in the future. The exhibition will continue each afternoon from 2 o'clock to 6 until December 15. Admission is free, but by special card issued by the Library Committee.

Of the 1500 books shown, there are at least a hundred examples of hand binding. The hand bindings were brought together by Miss Emily Preston, a member of the Library Committee, who has some of her own work on exhibition. Miss M. E. Wood, another member of the committee, has also put examples of her work on exhibition.

The publishers have sent original manuscripts and illustrations, and the walls of the art galleries are adorned with the original drawings of some of the more important books of the year.

There are also some fine examples of the printer's art in the Private Press Exhibit, in which the work of the Riverside Press, Merrymount Press, the Acorn, the Village Press and others is represented.

Not all of the exhibits had been placed when our representative called, but books by the following publishers were ready: Brentano's, Century Company, R. G. Cooke, Ltd., Dodd, Mead & Co., Doubleday, Page & Co., Duffield & Co., E. P. Dutton & Co., Paul Elder & Co., Funk & Wagnalls Co., Grolier Society, Henry Holt & Co., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., J. B. Lippincott Company, Longmans, Green & Co., McClure, Phillips & Co., A. C. McClurg & Co., Macmillan Company, G. P. Putnam's Sons and Frederick A. Stokes Co. It is expected that at least three or four other publishers will be represented.

THE REVOLUTION IN THE RUSSIAN BOOKTRADE.

"A REAL revolution," according to A. Litvin in Vorwärts, a Yiddish journal published in New York City, "has taken place in Russian literature. I should almost say that a dictatorship of the proletariat has been established. Since those October days of last year, all trace of mold and yellow has disappeared from the book market. The shops are stocked mainly with works which have a direct or indirect bearing on the Revolution. . . . Dozens of new firms have sprung up in St. Petersburg, Moscow, Kiev, Odessa, Warsaw—in all the great cities of Russia—whose specialty it is to propagate radical, proletarian ideas among all classes of the population. All those ideas which for a hundred years have been forbidden the light of day in Russia are now streaming forth in mighty torrents. No longer will the Russian 'intelligentsia' be compelled to look to Western Europe for ideas of a free land and a free life; this they will now be able to get in their own country and in their own tongue. Marx, Engels, Lassalle, Lafargue, Liebknecht, Bebel, Kautsky, Kropotkin, Chernishevsky, Hertzen and others are now published and sold and read openly. The presses work at fever heat, and yet are inadequate to satiate the spiritual hunger and thirst of the awakened Russian people. . . ."

"The yellow publishers, Leukhin, Manukhin, Sytin and many others who, until recently, were wont to flood city and country with tales of English 'milords,' 'Churka, the bandit,' and amatory letter-writers by the millions of copies, are to-day compelled to change the character of their output radically, in order to hold their own in the book market. Following the example set by the younger firms, they flood the market with hundreds of pamphlets which aim to popularize social and economic subjects for the masses. Naturally, all this has tended to raise the calling to a higher level. Where formerly the publishers engaged vagrant hacks for their potboilers—literary tramps who hang around the famous Chitrov market in Moscow, and the no less famous Viazemskoe podvorie in St. Petersburg—to-day these same publishers are compelled to apply to the more serious, scientific writers, and to pay well, too. The tramps themselves, in order to sustain existence, must adapt themselves to their new environment, by studying new fields of knowledge—all of which has a good moral effect upon them. Indeed, it even happens frequently that the besotted, forlorn vagrants regain, to some extent, their former human expression.

"Even an aristocratic firm such as Wolf, of St. Petersburg and Moscow, whose former productions consisted largely of éditions de luxe designed merely to adorn the tables of the wealthy, as fine specimens of bookmaking, has now begun to issue serious works upon proletarian subjects, from the pens of well-known Russian and European writers. The firm of Sytin, formerly quite yellow, now publishes Spencer and Buckle, in addition to hundreds of pamphlets on popular scientific subjects.

"The influence of the Revolution is felt even in school literature. The teachers, who, until a few years ago, kept aloof from the Revolution, being merely a category of chinovniki (bureaucrats), have at last awakened organized, and to-day stand forth as a very active element in the Revolution. Through this awakening there has been infused a stream of life into the dry text-books. The books which are being written to-day aim to familiarize the pupil with proletarian ideas, to give him a democratic outlook upon life, project the Revolution into his education and entrench it firmly in his soul. . . ."

A SOCIETY OF COLLECTORS OF LINCOLNIA.

A CIRCULAR has been issued by Judd Stewart, William H. Lambert, Gilbert A. Tracy and others, suggesting the organization of the collectors of Lincolniana into an association so as to make possible the exchange of duplicates and the gathering of information in regard to each collection. This could be done both by correspondence and by meetings. Such a society might meet annually in any of the cities containing one or more noteworthy Lincoln libraries, so that members could have an opportunity to become acquainted and see one another's collections.

It is thought that it would probably be advisable not to form any elaborate organization, but merely an association of kindred spirits. The dues, if any, would be for the necessary stationery from time to time, unless, of course, the organization developed into something very much larger than is at present contemplated.

Another object might be to build up a complete collection of everything that has been printed about Abraham Lincoln, to be housed in some central location.

The requirements for membership might be only a sincere interest in Lincoln and "clubability."

Those interested in this matter may send their names to Judd Stewart, 71 Broadway, New York City.

A NEW AUTHOR OF SHAKESPEARE.

DR. KARL BLEIBTREU, one of the most eminent of contemporary writers on German literature and history, has startled the literary world by declaring his absolute conviction that neither Shakespeare nor Bacon wrote the works attributed to William Shakespeare. His theory is that the real writer of Shakespeare's works was Roger, Earl of Rutland, who was born October 6, 1576, and who was a son-in-law of Sir Philip Sidney.

In a book shortly to be published, entitled "The True Shakespeare," Dr. Bleibtreu adduces detailed circumstantial evidence of this theory, which he admits was suggested by the work of Herr Avor, another German, which was lately published in Munich. Dr. Bleibtreu is convinced that the family archives in possession of the present Duke of Rutland contain valuable evidence in support of his contention.

English Shakespeare scholars, notably Pro-essor Dowden, see absolutely no evidence to justify Dr. Bleibtreu's theory. He has not seen the doctor's book, but judging from the published summary he is strongly of the belief that it will prove another mare's nest. He points out that the Earl of Rutland was born in 1576, twelve years later than Shakespeare, and if he was the author of the works attributed to the latter he couldn't have been older than fourteen or fifteen when he produced "Love's Labor Lost," a circumstance which is quite incredible. Professor Dowden repudiates Dr. Bleibtreu's description of Shakespeare as a low comedian who got drunk regularly and says it is wholly unjustifiable.

Professor Herford, another Shakespearian authority, regards the theory as likely to prove to be greater rubbish than the Baconian one. Dr. Abbott describes it as absurd and Dr. Gollancz says it is rubbish.

H. B. BURROWS, AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVE OF HOOPER & JACKSON, LTD.

H. B. BURROWS, vice-president and general manager of the Burrows Brothers Company, of Cleveland, O., has been elected vice-president of the Encyclopædia Britannica Co., controlled by Hooper & Jackson, Ltd., of London, who have been handling the London Times edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica," etc., and "The Times Book Club." Mr. Burrows, who has also been elected a director in the London concern, will have his headquarters in New York City, at 225 Fourth Avenue.

Mr. Burrows's career as a bookseller began about thirty-five years ago in a small bookstore in Saco, Me. Later he joined his brother, C. W. Burrows, in Cleveland, where the two brothers started in the book business with one clerk. At present their staff numbers 140, and the firm according to its president does more business in one week than it did in the entire first year of its existence.

Mr. H. B. Burrows, we understand, will retain his interest in the firm of the Burrows Brothers Company, and will have a place on the board of directors.

PETER PAUL OF BUFFALO IN NEW QUARTERS.

"WHEN the sign of the Peter Paul Company was removed from Main Street it did not indicate," says the Buffalo Express for November 18, "that the name Peter Paul, which had been associated with the book and stationery business in Buffalo for over thirty years, was no longer to be known in connection with the commercial life of the city.

"It was in August, 1873, that the Peter Paul & Brother bookstore was opened at No. 271 Main Street. Nine years later came the first move, uptown to No. 363 Main Street, where with more room and better facilities was opened the finest and most complete bookstore that Buffalo had seen. Here were to be found many rare and costly editions of standard works as well as all the popular books.

In the great fire of March, 1887, the Richmond Hotel, in which building the store was situated, was completely destroyed. A new location was immediately secured at No. 420 Main Street, and for eleven years the familiar name was there. In September, 1898, the firm of Peter Paul Company located at No. 448 Main Street and remained there until May of 1904, when the Peter Paul sign was finally removed from Main Street. Mr. Paul decided upon an uptown move. The book business was sold and, retaining the engraving and stationery department with its complete machinery, he removed his business to No. 136 North Pearl Street, and associated with him his son, under the firm name of Peter Paul & Son.

"Peter Paul appreciated the fact that the splendid growth of Buffalo warranted an establishment where the finest engraving, unique and original book plates, crests and designs, could be produced, and that meant a place away from the noise and bustle of the downtown business section and yet readily accessible to his patrons. These patrons for many years have included a large number of those who appreciate quality and taste in engraving, be it only a simple card or the more elaborate work of invitations, dies, etc. That Mr. Paul's judgment was correct is evinced by the fact that he has just completed a fine new fireproof building to be used exclusively for the constantly growing business of Peter Paul & Son. It stands in the rear of his home, between Allen and North Streets, at No. 136 North Pearl Street. The building is fortunately situated for the work to be executed. The light is unobstructed on every side, the interior is attractive, and here under Mr. Paul's personal supervision, in cheerful work-rooms, with much to inspire the desire of excellence, is being executed a class of work that is absolutely unexcelled."

POST CARDS IN THREE COLORS PAY HIGHER DUTY.

IN a decision by I. F. Fischer the Board of United States General Appraisers overruled on December 3 a protest filed by A. Streefer, of New York, it being held that post cards printed in three colors are properly dutiable under the Dingley tariff law as printed matter, with assessment at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem. It was maintained by the importer that the cards should be admitted as lithographic prints at the rate of 20 cents per pound.

TWO THOUSAND BOOKS AN HOUR.

"WILLIAM COLLINS, SONS & CO., of Glasgow and London," according to the London Bookseller, "are now producing from their new Glasgow factory 100,000 books a week, or 2000 an hour, of their New Home Library and Handy Pocket Novels, the sale of which is enormously increasing. Early in the last century William Collins, the great-grandfather of G. P. Collins, the present managing director, issued a cheap series of standard works, and the tradition thus established is to-day more than well maintained."

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM LEE.

WILLIAM LEE, the founder of the firm of Lee & Shepard, the predecessor of the present firm of Lothrop, Lee & Shepard, passed away quietly, on November 30, at the home of his wife's nephew, A. Willard Gorkin, in Hampton, N. H., where he had been residing during the past five years. Mr. Lee, the oldest member of the New England booktrade, who had been active in its service for upwards of sixty years, was born at the "North End" of Boston, April 17, 1826. At the age of eleven he obtained a situation in the bookstore of Samuel G. Drake, then located at 56 Cornhill. Mr. Drake, the father of Colonel Drake, the popular author, was himself a famous "bookworm" familiar with the authorities and history of Boston, and in after-life achieved a reputation as an author. In his employ Mr. Lee was thoroughly grounded in the mysteries of the profession of bookselling—showing himself an apt scholar, a patient worker, and a business man gifted with indomitable will and ambition.

After serving with Drake for three years young Lee passed two years at school in the country. Returning to Boston he again entered the book business, and, when nineteen years of age, he became clerk in the then flourishing publishing house of Phillips & Sampson, located on Winter Street. He took advantage of every opportunity for extending his knowledge of every detail of the business, and was soon looked upon by his employers as their "best" clerk. Selling by auction, especially in the evenings, was at that time a leading feature of the trade, and William Lee soon became an expert in that way, as those may remember who frequented the trade sales at Leavitt's in the days gone by. But he did not neglect his training in other directions, and kept himself informed on the character and contents of the books in stock, in order that he might speak intelligently of them to his customers.

At the age of twenty-one Mr. Lee was allowed a share in the business, and three years later he became an equal partner in the firm. When it is remembered that Phillips & Sampson at that time stood foremost as publishers in the East, the fact that at the age of twenty-four one of their clerks was admitted to an equal partnership certainly gives evidence that the one so favored was a man of no ordinary quality.

In the firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co. Mr. Lee continued a partner for seven years, and to his energy and industry the firm during that period was much indebted for its prosperity. For twelve and sometimes fifteen hours a day he remained faithfully at his round of duty. But nature at last claimed her debt. In 1857 Mr. Lee's health gave way, and he was ordered by his physicians to relinquish all cares of business. He sold his interest to his partners for $65,000, taking the notes of the firm for that amount. After a few months' travel in his own country he sailed for Europe in June, 1858, with Willard Small—afterward a bookseller in Boston, at 24 Franklin Street, who died a few years ago—with the intention of spending five years on the Continent. He visited England, Germany, Belgium, Spain and France. While he was in Paris an incident happened, the recollection of which in after days proved quite as amusing as it was annoying at the time. It was during the excitement subsequent to the Orsini affair. Mr. Lee always wore a long beard, and in his travels wore a soft broadbrimmed hat. One day, while walking about the streets, he was arrested and taken to the Palais de Justice. Explanations and expostulations proved unavailing. The prisoner was declared to be a "red" republican, and that, in those days, was no trifling matter. It was only after the production of a passport and the intervention of the United States consul, who succeeded in proving that the accused was a black Republican and not a red one, that the authorities were induced to release their captive.

On the point of making a second trip to Spain, Mr. Lee received the tidings of the death of his former partners, Messrs. Phillips and Sampson, and of the collapse of their firm. The panic of 1857 had made sad havoc with the booktrade generally, and those who weathered the storm were sorely pressed. Phillips, Sampson & Co. met with heavy losses, but struggled on in the hopes of recovering themselves. But in 1859 the sudden deaths of the senior members of the firm paralyzed its prosperity, and the worst quickly followed.

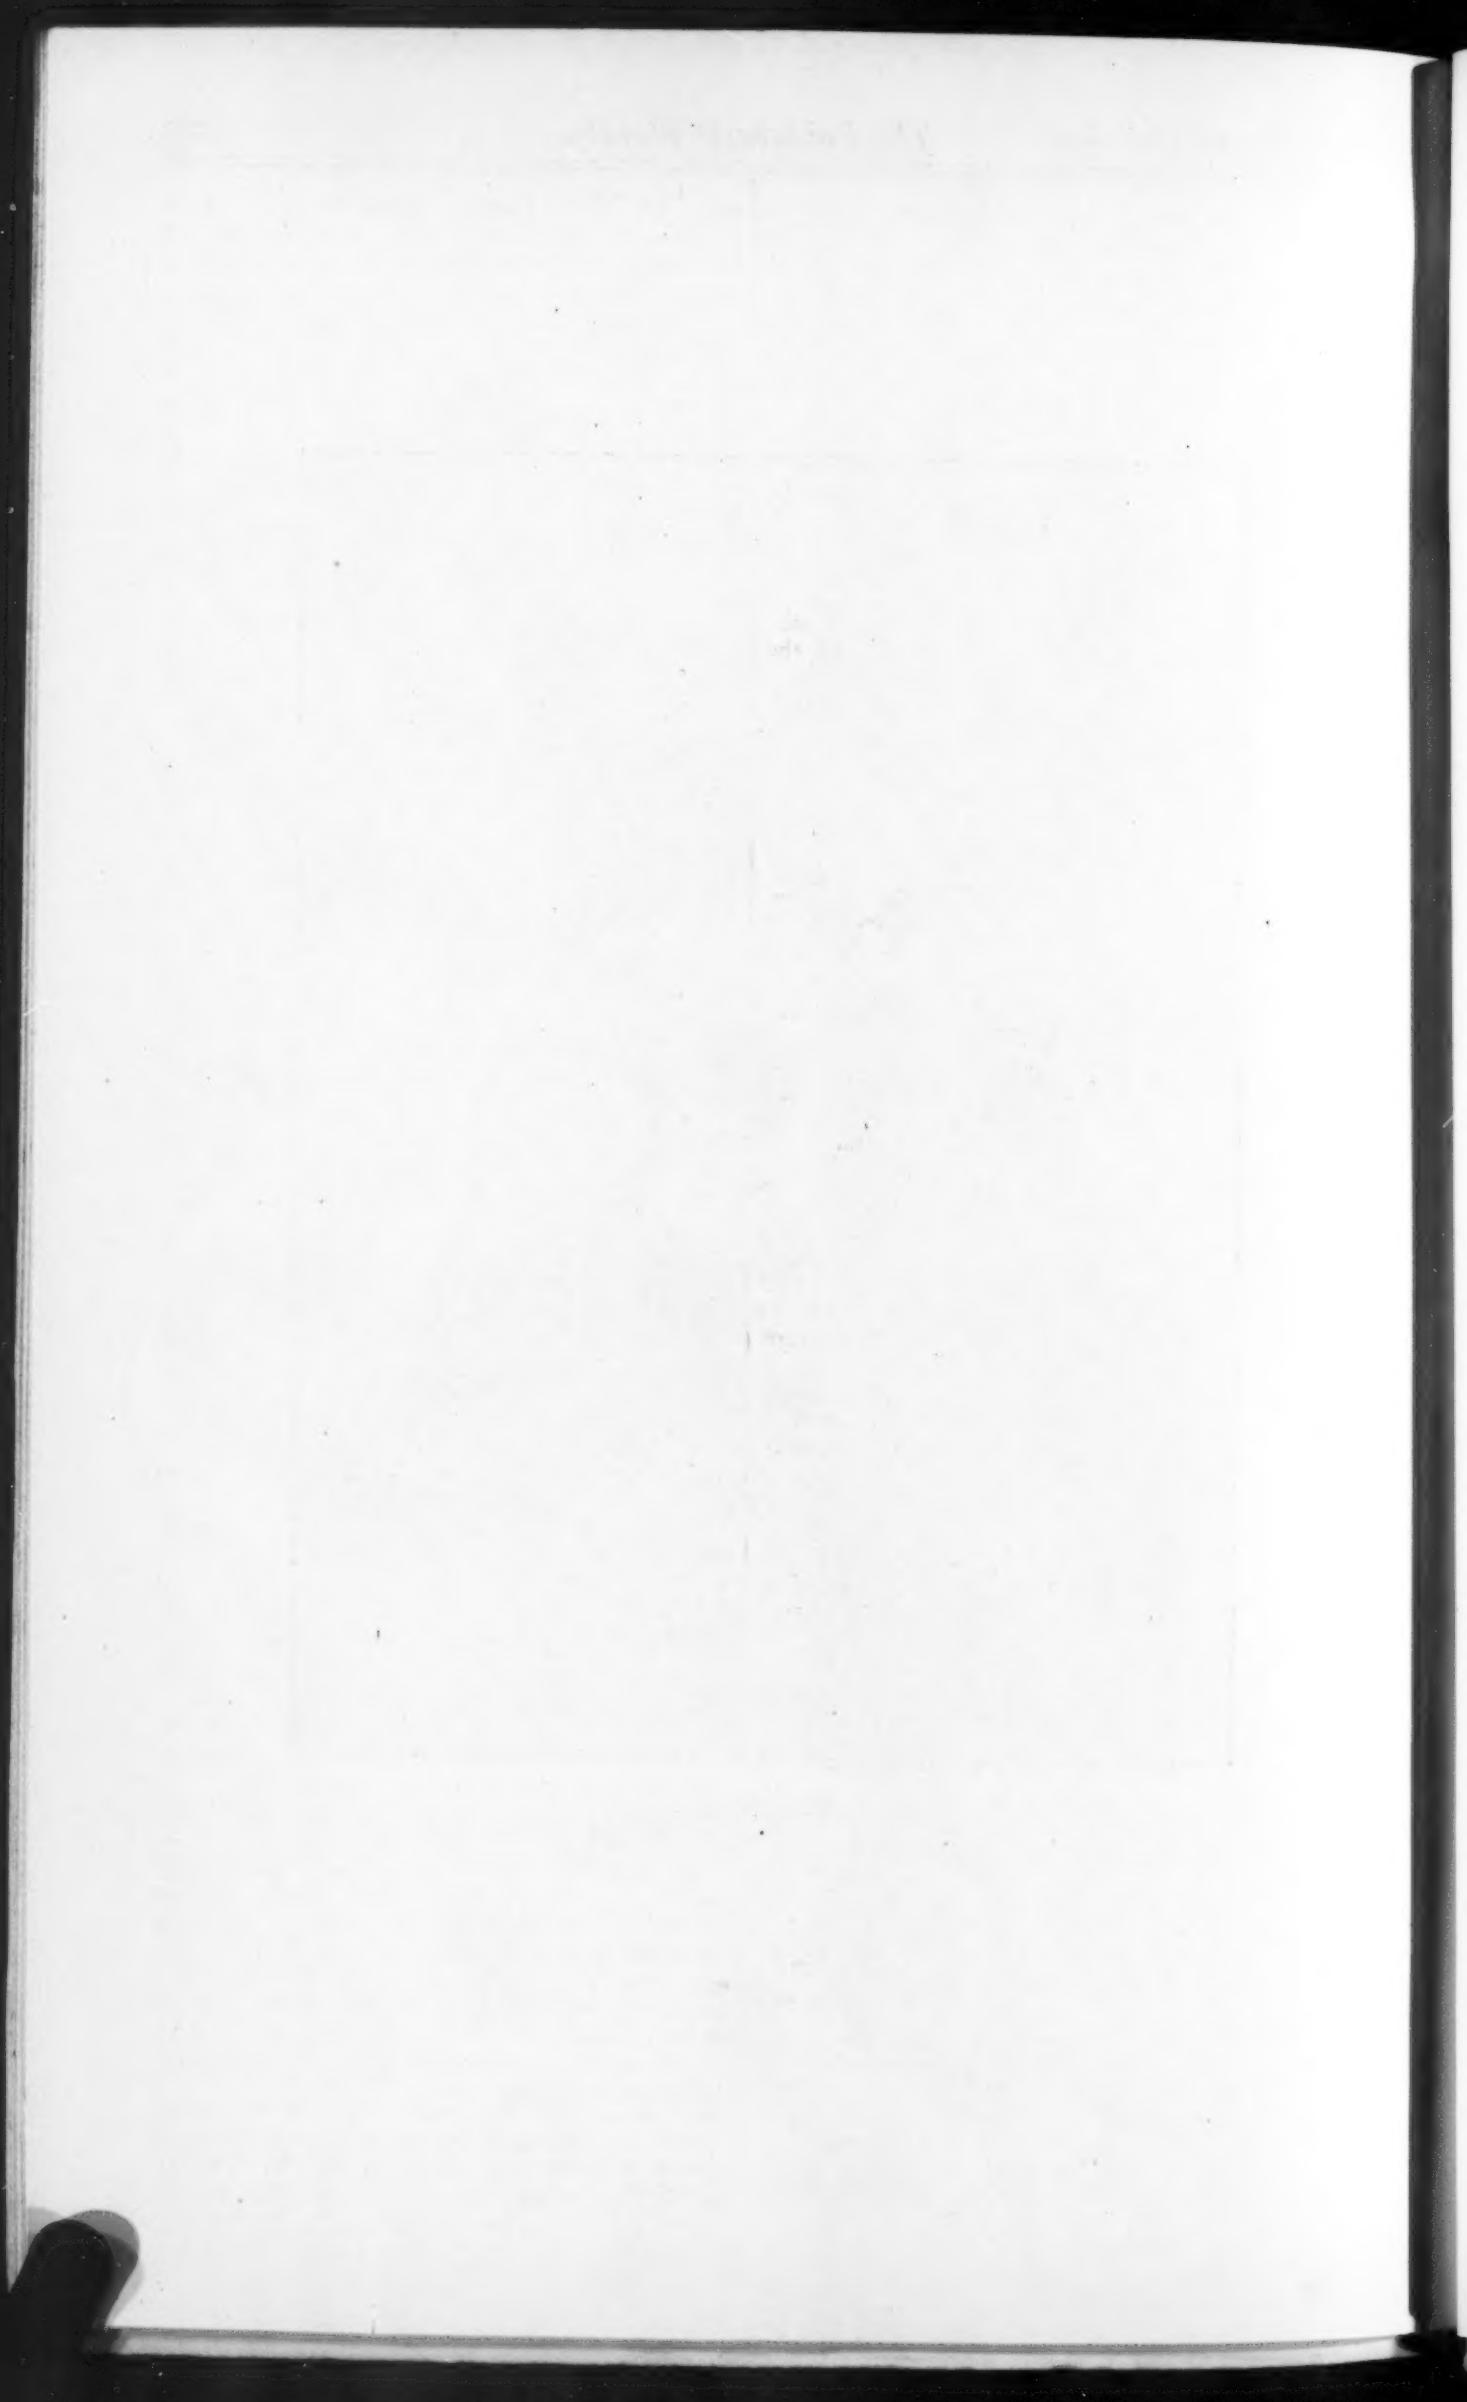

Mr. Lee had received no warning of the impending calamity, and for the moment was entirely overcome by the announcement. However, he realized what it implied, and shortly returned to Boston to find himself a heavy loser by the disaster. Undaunted, he gathered up what remained of his fortune, and in February, 1860, he became a member of the firm of Crosby, Nichols & Co., which had purchased many of the plates of the late firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co. The firm became Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co.; but, owing to the long stagnation of trade, succeeded by losses in the Southern States caused by the political troubles of those days, it did not prosper, and at the close of the year Mr. Lee withdrew from the business without a dollar that he could call his own.

While walking down Washington Street one day shortly after he had withdrawn from the firm of Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co., Mr. Lee met his friend of former days, Charles A. B. Shepard, whose firm of Shepard, Clark & Brown had also been swept away in the aftermath of the panic of '57. On comparing notes, it appeared that both had an equally small share of cash capital. At a meeting in the evening of the same day affairs were again candidly and earnestly discussed, and plans laid to form the firm that in a short time was to take a place in the foremost rank of the booktrade.

On February 1, 1861, the sign of Lee & Shepard appeared on the walls of a very old, two-storied wooden building, known as the "Chelsea Dye-House," on Washington Street, opposite the Old South Meeting-House. The building first occupied by Lee & Shepard is perhaps better known to the present generation as the site of the "Old South Clothing House." Occupying the oldest building in Boston, the new firm facetiously advertised as "the oldest house in Boston." A more unpropitious time to start in business, with absolutely no capital but brain, muscle, energy, integrity, ambition and friends could hardly be imagined. The new firm attended to their own bookkeeping, did their own buying and selling, tied up their own bundles, and packed up and shipped the cases. Early and late they shouldered their tasks and pushed ahead. In a short time they had won the confidence of the public by their intelligent and prompt service. After three years thus spent Lee & Shepard removed to a new store at 149 Washington Street, where they remained until the destructive fire in November of 1872, in which they lost nearly a quarter of a million of dollars. Early in 1873 they began afresh in a building that had just been erected at the southeast corner of Franklin and Hawley Streets. In January, 1885, they removed to 10 Milk Street, adjoining the "Old South."

When Lee & Shepard started in the "Chelsea Dye-House" it was simply as booksellers, and for some time they had no thought of making books themselves. One day Mr. Shepard chanced to make a social call on Samuel C. Perkins, who had been associated with Phillips, Sampson & Co., and had come into possession of some stereotype plates. During the conversation Mr. Perkins recalled the fact and asked Mr. Shepard to take them off his hands. The plates included those of Oliver Optic's Boat Club Series, in six volumes, and those of the Riverside Series, in twelve volumes. Mr. Lee agreed with his partner to buy the plates, and the firm at once issued a new edition of both series. They met with a quick sale, and from that time the Oliver Optic books became an important branch of their business.

Among the other successful writers whom Lee & Shepard brought into notice was Miss Rebecca I. Clark, better known by her pseudonym of "Sophie May," whose first book, "Little Prudy," achieved a success not surpassed even by that of Miss Alcott's "Little Women."

Lee & Shepard's catalogue embraced the names of many authors who ranked high in American literature. Among the more prominent may be named the Rev. Asa Bullard, Professor James DeMille, the Rev. Elijah Kellogg, the author of many bright and wholesome stories for youth; J. T. Trowbridge, "Petroleum V. Nasby," whom Lincoln termed the third power in crushing the Rebellion; Charles Sumner, the edition of whose works, published by this firm, was thought worthy of award at the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition; Francis H. Underwood, one of the most genial and scholarly of American writers; Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, B. P. Shillaber, ("Mrs. Partington,") Henry Wood, Miss Amanda M. Douglas, and others of almost equal popularity.

The firm was radical during the years when American ideas were being shaped and fought for, and had the courage to publish the works of Charles Sumner when no one else could be found to publish them. The writings of Horace Mann, Wendell Phillips, William Whiting, the Rev. Charles Beecher, and other writers of this stamp who spoke boldly for the rights of man, also bore the imprint of Lee & Shepard.

They were the first to publish in separate form favorite songs and poems with appropriate illustrations—an idea that was at once taken up by a number of other publishing houses. These were issued first in cloth binding, and afterwards in the Golden Floral style. In the latter attractive dress the series proved immensely popular, and hundreds of thousands of copies were sold every season. This series was followed by the equally popular illustrated books by Miss Jerome, of which "One Year's Sketch-Book" has been declared to be without a rival in its own field, which is also true of Miss Miner's "Orchids," published by this house.

In 1870 they joined with Charles T. Dillingham, then of the firm of Felt & Dillingham, in the New York branch of Lee, Shepard & Dillingham, which, in 1875, was taken over by Mr. Dillingham and conducted by him under his own name until he gave up the jobbing business in March, 1896.

Mr. Shepard died in January, 1889.* After that time Mr. Lee held the laboring oar—working steadily and ceaselessly. Indeed we believe that it is strictly within the truth that Mr. Lee during the thirty-seven years that he was connected with the firm of Lee & Shepard allowed himself hardly a week's vacation.

In June, 1898, a reorganization of the firm took place, Fleming & Co., the well-known Boston bookbinders, and for years the backers of Lee & Shepard, purchasing the entire right and title to the business. Warren F. Gregory, until then manager of the educational department of the firm, became general manager, and Mr. Lee retired.

In connection with Charles I. Shepard, who, by the way, was no relative of Mr. Lee's early partner, Mr. Lee formed a partnership, and for a short time devoted himself to genealogical research. This firm had but a short-lived existence, and since 1902 Mr. Lee practically lived in retirement.

In his death the trade parts with a personality that throughout his long and busy career was loved by hundreds of men to whom he was a daily inspiration in the direction of unceasing and loyal service to his fellow men.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. ARTHUR BELL NICHOLLS died on December 4 at Banagher, Ireland, aged ninety years. He was the husband of Charlotte Brontë, the famous novelist.

WILLIAM K. WALLACE, city street commissioner of Crawfordsville, Ind., died November 3 in that city. As a member of the firm of Robinson & Wallace, booksellers, he was engaged in business at Crawfordsville for more than twenty years. Mr. Wallace was a member of the original Montgomery Guards, organized and commanded by General Lew Wallace before the war.

* For a sketch of Mr. Shepard see PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, February 2, 1889. V. xxxv., No. 888, pp. 98-99.

ARTHUR VAUGHAN ABBOTT, engineer and author of "Electrical Transmission of Energy," "The Evolution of a Switchboard," "History and Use of Testing Machines," and "Treatise on Fuel," died in St. Luke's Hospital, New York City, on December 1. He was born in New York forty-eight years ago.

ROBERT PEARSALL MORTON, for upwards of half a century cashier, secretary and treasurer of the J. B. Lippincott Company and its predecessors, died on December 1, at his residence in Germantown, Pa. Mr. Morton was born in Philadelphia in 1831. His father, Samuel George Morton, was one of the first presidents of the Academy of Natural Science. At the age of nineteen Mr. Morton entered the employ of Grigg & Elliot, and served since then in the capacity of cashier in the employ of Grigg, Elliot & Co., Lippincott, Grambo & Co., and J. B. Lippincott & Co. When the firm was reorganized in 1885 as the J. B. Lippincott Company, Mr. Morton became the secretary and treasurer of the company.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the J. B. Lippincott Company, called on December 3 to take action on the death of their associate, the following resolutions were passed:

WHEREAS, in the death of Mr. Robert P. Morton, our company loses a member whose term of service has exceeded that of any other person connected with our business, he having been associated with the present company and its predecessors during a period of fifty-six years, first as cashier, and, since our organization, in 1885, as secretary and treasurer; and

WHEREAS, throughout this long business career he has performed his duties with intelligence, fidelity and integrity, it is therefore

Resolved. That there be entered on the minutes the expression of the deep sense of the loss which this company has experienced in his death; and, that, furthermore, the members of this board desire to record this tribute of their esteem and respect to the memory of their late associate, whose faithful service and kind and genial personality have endeared him to those with whom he has been so long associated; and

Resolved. That we offer to his widow and his son our sincere sympathy in their bereavement, and that the secretary be requested to send them a copy of these minutes.

Mr. Morton was an intimate friend of the late George W. Childs, and besides had hosts of friends and acquaintances in the publishing world. He leaves a wife and one son, Robert P. Morton, Jr. Dr. Thomas G. Morton, well known in Philadelphia, was his brother.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

PITTSBURG BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE booksellers and stationers of Pittsburgh, Pa., organized their association November 14, 1899, being among the first formed for the purposes of maintaining remunerative prices, assisting each other in the disposition of dead stocks, and promoting good fellowship and a kindly feeling among the trade generally.

How well they have succeeded may be judged by the number of kindred associations that have been formed in other cities, nearly all basing their organization and methods upon suggestions offered and assistance given by the ever-ready officials of the Iron City Association.

Every bookseller and stationer in the city is heart and soul in the movement—prices are remunerative, everybody is busy and now looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the annual dinner, which will be eaten Tuesday evening, January 22, and which promises to be the best of their many good annual reunions.

The new officers of the association are: Harry F. Davis, president; A. W. McCloy, of A. W. McCloy & Co., 1st vice-president; George H. Alexander, of George H. Alexander & Co., 2d vice-president; Robert Crawford, treasurer; Jacob Henrici, recording secretary, and E. L. Stevenson, of Stevenson & Foster Co., corresponding secretary. D. PITTSBURG, PA., December 3, 1906.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE—ANNUAL DINNER.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE will give its annual dinner on January 16, 1907, at the rooms of the Aldine Association. In order to provide an entertainment at which ladies may be present it has been concluded to combine a "Ladies' Night" with the annual dinner, so that in January the members of the League may be attended by their families. As already announced, an Authors' Reading will be given under the auspices of the League on March 12, and in May the League will join with the American Booksellers' Association in their annual dinner.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Christian Science Committee on Publication sent to the newspapers this week a long statement accompanied by copies of five affidavits alleging that the picture printed in the December number of McClure's Magazine as a portrait of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy was not what it purported to be, but was a photograph of Mrs. Sarah C. Chevallier, a former Boston resident.

THE December McClure's Magazine contains a story by Charles Frederick Holder, author of "The Log of a Sea Angler," entitled "Clancy of the Jack Pot," one of the most remarkable instances of heroism chronicled for many a long day. In some way the details of this virile story escaped from the editorial rooms and the author was inundated with demands for stories along the same line. A well-known theatrical manager proposed a play founded on the incident. In fact Clancy was a well-known character before McClure's was off the press. Mr. Holder insists that he does not write fiction (being a fisherman), but the readers of the "Log" now have an opportunity of passing judgment on this.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE bicentenary of the birth of Henry Fielding will be celebrated April 22, 1907. There will be a big public dinner, for which the preliminaries are already under way. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle will preside, and all the prominent literary men of the day will be present.

WILLIAM VAUGHN Moody's friends at the Players' Club, New York City, recently gave him a dinner in recognition of the success of his play, "The Great Divide." The menu was enlivened by the following quotations: "How now? Moody?"—Tempest, i. 2, and "After many moody thoughts."—Henry VI, iv. 6. Mr. Moody's volume of "Poems" is already in its seventh edition.

IMAGINE an author meeting his hero, face to face, in real life! It sounds very terrible, yet it really happened the other day when Sewell Ford, the author of "Shorty McCabe," met William Muldoon, "Professor of Physical Culture," in the café of the Holland House, New York. Though Professor Muldoon is popularly supposed to be the original of Shorty McCabe, he and Mr. Ford had not met until they were introduced on this occasion. It was an embarrassing moment for the author until Mr. Muldoon turned to him and said: "Mr. Ford, I've read your book and enjoyed it immensely. I should like to meet the original of Shorty."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

HARPER & BROTHERS have issued an illustrated descriptive catalogue of selected juvenile books. For many years many notable books for the young have borne the Harper imprint. Among their famous authors are Mark Twain, William Dean Howells, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, Thomas Nelson Page and Ruth McEnery Stuart, and the children's great favorites, Howard Pyle, Kirk Munroe, W. O. Stoddard, and many more. The Abbott series of histories and C. C. Coffin's historical tales have become classics. An important feature, which will appeal particularly to teachers and school superintendents, as well as to mothers, is a selected list of the Harper juveniles arranged for ages or grades. This list will enable any one to choose for a child the books best suited to his understanding. The table has been prepared by educational experts and is a new feature for a publisher's catalogue.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CEDRIC CHIVERS, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Bath, Eng., has been awarded the Grand Prix at the Milan Exhibition for excellence in bookbinding.

THE ELMTREE PRESS, of Woodstock, Vt., is bringing out an edition of Edward Fitzgerald's version of Æschylus's "Agamemnon," edited by Charles Loomis Dana and John Cotton Dana.

THE publication of Henry James's new book, "The American Scene," containing the impressions gathered by the author in the United States during his recent visit to his native land, has been postponed until next year.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY have just brought out Frederick A. Ray's "Maid of the Mohawk," dedicated by the author to the memory of his father. This story introduces many Tryon County worthies and very well describes the life and manners of the Colonial rustic, to which class the hero belongs.

THAT this is no doubt a great year for the "bear" is evidenced by the fact that a second edition has been required of Ver Beck's "Book of Bears," which was published by the Lippincotts only a few weeks ago. From the steady and increasing demand it looks as if several editions will be required before the Christmas season.

CHATTO & WINDUS will publish next February a volume by the Marquis de Segur, a brilliant French writer, of which Mlle. De Lespinasse, the original of Mrs. Ward's heroine in "Lady Rose's Daughter," is the subject. The book, it is asserted, will clear up the mystery hitherto regarded as insolvable, which hangs over Julie's origin.

THERE is a news item current that Mme. Melba, the famous singer, has had her name copyrighted "because she found it was being made dreadfully common by application to all sorts of theatrical, pharmaceutical and other goods and preparations." The trouble with this news item is that there is no law known by which a person's name can be copyrighted.

IT should be a matter of gratification to the printers and book manufacturers of the United States that one of their number—W. F. Brainard, of 18 East Seventeenth Street, New York City—was chosen as expert on the manufacturing of school books by the Text-Book Commission of Toronto. The Canadians evidently had a high opinion of Mr. Brainard's knowledge, for they were willing to pay him $100 a day for his services.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just published volume 1 of the two-volume edition of the collected poetical works of W. B. Yeats. It is announced that the second volume, containing Mr. Yeats's dramas in verse, has been delayed and will not appear until next spring. The first volume contains his "Lyrical Poems." According to the author's own words, he has brought together in this new edition "for the first time all of my poetry I have any liking for."

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY have in press a timely book on "The Investments of Life Insurance Companies," by Lester W. Zartman, instructor of insurance in Yale University. The principal topics treated include an analysis of the investments and earning power of each class of assets belonging to insurance companies, and a discussion of the relation of the investments to social welfare, taking up particularly the problem of securing a proper control of the immense assets which the companies are accumulating.

By an odd coincidence, two recent books on a serious and important subject were not only published almost simultaneously, but were both written by women and published under exactly the same title. One of these was Mrs. Elsie Clews Parsons's work on "The Family," while the author of the other book on the same subject is Helen Bosanquet, an Englishwoman and the wife of Bernard Bosanquet, Professor of Moral Philosophy at St. Andrew's. Mrs. Bosanquet has already achieved distinction as a writer on sociological subjects.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has published, in two volumes, "Helps and Hindrances to the Christian Life," by the Rev. Francis E. Paget, which consists of sermons arranged to follow the Christian year. Mr. Whittaker has also just brought out a new edition, at a reduced and popular price, of "The Spiritual Development of St. Paul," by the late Rev. George Matheson, whose physical infirmity of blindness lent pathetic interest to his numerous literary productions. His work on St. Paul has been declared to be, on high authority, one of the ablest theological studies produced during the last decade.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY will issue shortly "A Queen of Indiscretions: the Tragedy of Caroline of Brunswick, Queen of England," translated by Frederick Chapman from the Italian of Graziano Paolo Clerci, with numerous illustrations reproduced from contemporary portraits and prints. Caroline of Brunswick was the cousin of George IV. of England, whom she married. She became a great favorite with the people, and the king's jealousy led him to persecute her cruelly. She was impulsive and spoke too thoughtlessly, but suffered for all her indiscretions. The publishers have made a very handsome book of her life history.

E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY announce as ready "The Vagabond in Literature," by Arthur Rickett; "Uganda to Khartoum, Life and Adventures on the Upper Nile," by Albert B. Lloyd, author of "In Dwarfland and Cannibal Country;" "Fairy Gold," an illustrated book of old English fairy tales; and (among anthologies) "The Pilgrim's Way," by Quiller-Couch, and "The Wayfarer," by Claude E. Benson; new editions of "Mary Stuart," by Florence A. MacCunn; of "New Egypt," by A. B. De Guerville; "The Book for a Rainy Day;" also, of "An Englishwoman in the Philippines," a book of close observation and fitted to be of real service, written by one resident there for nine months.

A. C. McClurg & Co. are bringing out by arrangement with John Murray, of London, an imposing work on "Venice, its Individual Growth from the Earliest Beginnings to the Fall of the Republic," by Pompeo Molmenti, a distinguished Italian writer. The first section, in two volumes, treats of the Middle Ages, and deals with the origins of the Venetians to the end of the fifteenth century. The translation has been made by Horatio F. Brown, and typographically no pains have been spared to make the book perfect in every detail. The paper has been imported from England, the type is the beautiful Italian face cut by Bodoni, the frontispieces are printed in Italy on Japanese vellum, and the illustrations are made from plates engraved in Italy.

THE KENNY DIRECTORY COMPANY, New York City, have just brought out the fourth edition of "Kenny's Hotel Directory." It is a handy little volume, not too large for the coat pocket, which contains much information of value to the travelling man and tourist. It contains a list of the principal hotels in the United States, Canada, Cuba, Mexico, Porto Rico, Hawaii, China, Japan and the West Indies, in London, Liverpool and Birmingham in England, and other foreign cities, together with their rates and other important particulars. There is also a list of clubs in the United States and abroad, the location of money order and telegraph offices, an abstract of automobile laws in this country and in England, and much other useful information.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston, have just ready in their Musicians' Library a volume of "Early Italian Piano Music," a collection of pieces originally written for the harpsichord and clavichord, edited by M. Esposito. The volume possesses a dual interest both for the student and the amateur of instrumental music, affording, as it does, a comprehensive view of the development among the great Italian composers of the school of harpsichord music; and constituting also a collection of masterpieces which may be effectively performed upon the modern pianoforte. Beginning with Ercole Pasquini, one of the earliest composers for the harpsichord, the contents include, in chronological order, pieces by Frescobaldi, by Alessandro Scarlatti and his more widely-known son, Domenico, by Martini and others, down to Clementi, whose works form a bridge with piano composition. The editing, so important in a volume of archaic music, whose composers put the mere notes on paper, has been intelligently and sympathetically done. Biographical sketches are provided of all the composers represented, and the volume contains also several illustrations of rare instruments of the period, both clavichords and harpsichords, with a note in explanation of their construction and tone quality.

THE COMITÉ FRANÇAIS DES EXPOSITIONS À L'ÉTRANGER, Bourse de Commerce, Rue du Louvre, Paris, has published a full report on the French book section at the St. Louis exposition in 1904, prepared by Henri Le Soudier, a member of the jury and vice-president of the section. In the section of his report entitled "Bilan du commerce de la librairie—France et Allemagne," M. Soudier points out the unreliability of book statistics as an indication of the actual book productiveness of Germany for any given year. Not only does the German statistician, according to M. Le Soudier, include as books everything printed in Germany, but also all writings in the German language printed in every other part of the world—as for example those published in Russia, France, Italy, the United States, etc. M. Soudier also makes the graver charge that books produced in France and in Italy, and exported from those countries to Northern Europe or to America when carried in German vessels, are included by the German statistician as among books produced by Germany. After a review of the exhibition of the booktrade in St. Louis, M. Soudier gives some valuable hints to French publishers. The report is illustrated with views of the exhibition, and contains also specimens of various methods of reproduction in black and in colors.

PAUL ELDER & Co. announce a volume of selections made by Vere Goldthwaite from the works and lectures of Robert G. Ingersoll, entitled "The Philosophy of Ingersoll;" "Ye Gardeyne Boke," a compilation by Jennie Day Haines, that will strongly appeal to all garden lovers; "Sunday Symphonies," also compiled by Miss Haines, which forms a companion to her "Blue Monday Book," which, together with "Sovereign Women versus Mere Man," has been reprinted; "The Twins and the Whys," by Susan F. Thompson, a fairy tale descriptive of a journey of two little girls, resulting in experiences somewhat reminiscent of Bunyan and somewhat suggestive of a newer teaching; "The Princess of Manoa," a collection of romantic stories of old Hawaii, by Mrs. Frank R. Day, of Honolulu, with illustrations from paintings by D. Howard Hitchcock; "The Garden Book of California," a new nature book by Belle Sumner Angier, which will be followed next month by "Bird Notes Afield," by Charles Keeler; also, "The Auto Guest Book, being the Mobile Maxim of Punbad the Railer," by Ethel Watts-Mumford Grant and Richard Butler Glaenzer; and "A Century of Misquotations," disarranged by May B. Dimond, which form additions to their series entitled For the Gaiety of the Nations. They have reprinted "The Girls' College Record," by Virginia Woodson Frame, newly illustrated; "Impressions of Ukiyo-ye," a comprehensive presentation of the school of Japanese color-print artists, by Dora Amsden; "Prosit," a book of toasts, by Clotho; "Good Things and Graces," by Isabel Goodhue; and "The Psychological Year Book," first and second series, by Janet Young.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish early next year Hauptmann's popular play, "Hannele," which by many is considered to be at once the most profound and the most poetic of the great German dramatist's works. The scenes are laid, for the most part, in an almshouse in a village of Southern Germany. A child, whose name gives the play its title, is dying, and while she dies she has a heavenly vision, in which Christ and angels appear. The whole play is one of loftiness and feeling. The text of the whole play is "Suffer little children to come unto Me." The translation has been made by Charles Henry Meltzer, whose admirable translation of Hauptmann's "Sunken Bell" has just gone into a new edition—the sixth. They will bring out in January H. B. Marriott Watson's new book, "The Privateers," the heroine of which is a beautiful English girl, who, unknown to herself, is the heiress to a great block of valuable American railroad stock. This stock is the key to a great railroad merger, and two multimillionaire railway magnates determine to marry the girl. One goes to England and makes love to her. The other, when he hears of it, abducts her on his private yacht. His rival secures the aid of an English naval officer and starts in pursuit on another yacht. The naval officer ultimately becomes the real hero of the story, as may well be imagined. A somewhat unique book also announced for publication in January is "My Life As an Indian," by J. W. Schulz, said to be a most intimate and real narrative of American Indian life. Mr. Schulz's history is an extremely unusual one. He was born in New England of German parents more than seventy years ago. When he was a very young man he decided to go to the source of the Missouri River. He stopped at Fort Benton, which, in the forties was a picturesque frontier post. He fell in with the Penguin Blackfeet Indians, then one of the most powerful tribes of the West. He assumed their life, joined them in their wars on other tribes, was made a full member of their tribe and married an Indian squaw. Some years later, when he inherited money in the East, he returned to civilization, but found it so cramped that he returned to his old Indian haunts, where he remained until a few years ago. In his book he not only gives the story of his long life as an Indian, but he tells of the scandal of Indian agencies and the long injustice which the Government has permitted Indian agents to do the Indians.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

Note In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Note Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

A MAID IN ARCADY

By RALPH HENRY BARBOUR

This year the author of the former Xmas successes, "An Orchard Princess" and "Kitty of the Roses," has written a novel of idyllic love, with humor, gayety and charming love situations vying for supremacy on every page.

JUST THE BOOK FOR A CHRISTMAS PRESENT

Elaborately illustrated in colors and tints. Small quarto. Decorated cover, in gold, with medallion, in a box, $2.00.

The Happy-Go-Lucky

Translated from the German by
MRS. A. L. WISTER

Sumptuously illustrated in colors and tints. Decoratively bound in cloth and inclosed in a box, $2.00.

The Adventures of Joujou

By EDITH MACVANE

The daintiest and most charming love story of the year.

Fifteen full-page illustrations in colors by Frank Ver Beck.

Square octavo. Ornamental cloth, in a box. $2.00.

Italian Days and Ways

By ANNE HOLLINGSWORTH WHARTON

In this book Miss Wharton gives the experiences and impressions of three women en voyage, as related by one of the party in a series of letters. The charm of less-frequented Italian towns, as well as of the large cities, is delightfully set forth, and the fine thread of a love-story beguiles the reader from chapter to chapter. Illus. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50 net.

The Two Best Novels for Christmas Gifts

DASHING ON—Eleventh Edition

The Colonel of the Red Huzzars

By JOHN REED SCOTT

As all honors as 1906's most popular book. The illustrations in color by F. UNDERWOOD add greatly to its value as a gift. Bound in cloth, $1.50.

THE BEST BEAR BOOK

Ver Beck's Book of Bears SECOND EDITION

A most delightful book, which will warm and stir the heart of young and old alike.

The illustrations (seventy-five in number) from the gifted hand of Frank Ver Beck, are delicious, being outrageously funny and yet artistically fine and adequate.

Some are in full colors, others in two colors, and some in tint.

Size of book, 8½ x 10½ in. Bound in boards, with special cover design in colors, $1.50

THIRD EDITION

Gabrielle Transgressor

By the author of "The Ravanelles"
HARRIS DICKSON

This is the most charming piece of work Mr. Dickson has done—an idyllic tale of a garden in old New Orleans. The love story of Gabrielle, the convent-bred girl, for the exiled Turkish prince, is intense and unusual, and the author has breathed into the romance an Arabian Nights atmosphere full of enchantment.

Frontispiece in color. Bound in decorated cloth, $1.50.
